PRESIDENTS REPORT

A big spirited hello to all members. It has been a while since I have put pen to paper but in my absence of President’s Reports I have been ably assisted by our good Secretary, Graham who keeps all the info flowing.

Let me first welcome our new Commissioner of Police, John McRoberts and his family and hope he and his family enjoy the Northern Territory, as I am sure they will.

Our Association has been making good progress in bringing new members to the fold but we could do better. If you know of a former member that is not an Rpant member, please inform us so we can get an application form to them.

Graham and I have been sitting on the Monument Committee which is coming along splendidly. However we do need ongoing support financially as well as ongoing support in maintenance. If anyone is interested in this venture we welcome any support that you can give.

The monument is the idea of former Commissioner Paul White and is being erected to commemorate past, present and future police officers who have, are, or will be, part of the great Territory Police Force, and we should be proud to be a part of it.

While on the subject of the past, it is with sorrow I mention the passing of Roy (Bluey) Harvey who I had the pleasure of working with in Katherine. It is people like Bluey that we want to remember with things like the Larry Boy Search that he successfully concluded by capturing Larry Boy. Great to catch up with you all till the next newsletter.

John Wolthers President

SECRETARY’S NOTES

Hi Members,

Well I had a good break over the Christmas and New Year period. We went to the Gold Coast on 20/12/09 and caught up with our youngest daughter and her family and had Xmas with them. On the 27th we flew over to New Zealand for 3 weeks with other family members, what a great time we had. Anyway that is all behind us now and it’s back to work. The Association is holding a barbeque on Sunday 21 March 2010 to welcome and introduce our new Patron, Commissioner John McRoberts to our members. The Executive is to hold discussions with Mr McRoberts regarding the Association’s role within the Police environment, our mutual goals and vision for the future of the Association.

JIM ALEXANDER’S LETTER
Dear Graham,

Just in case you are ever stuck for newsletter material, perhaps this might help you out.

Three years ago Rain Bird was published in the UK, with certain alterations, a couple of additions and an epilogue.

Prior to publication in the Territory the Historical Society changed miles to kilometres and lubras to aboriginal women. In the UK edition I have reverted to the

For perhaps PC reasons, the Society omitted the end of the chapter where I described the duties of the night shift reserve constable at the Bennett Street Police Station. This has been included in the UK edition and reads as follows:-

"Of all the cases of alcoholic remorse I witnessed on this shift, the worst was that suffered by a big blonde Norwegian seaman. Grey in the face from the liquor he had consumed in great quantity the day before, he nodded towards a sorry looking lubra who was lying on the concrete floor of the neighbouring cage, snoring heavily.

'What is she in for?' he asked.

His pallor deepened as I explained that she had been his paramour of the night before and, not only was she drunk, but she was also suffering from leprosy. I was able to reassure him that the compromising position he had been found in would have to be repeated innumerable times before he stood any risk of contracting the disease, but the revelation was too much for his weakened constitution and he started to retch. Poor devil, I thought, and poor lubra, too".

The Society also omitted a paragraph of my description of the Katherine aboriginals, probably also for PC reasons. This has been included in the UK edition and reads as follows:

“They had a distinctive acrid body odour, but alleviated somewhat by the all pervasive wood smoke. Their habit of sleeping with their dogs all around them didn’t help either. I suppose that water to them meant salvation and using it for washing went against their instincts. To be fair though, they said that they could detect the ‘white fella smell’ from yards away.”
They allowed their dogs to sleep with them, not just because they liked them and could see no harm in it, but also because the dogs kept them warm in the cool nights of the Dry Season. This gave rise to the whites’ good natured gauging of the temperature by the number of dogs. A cool night was a ‘one dog night’, a very cool night was a ‘two dog night’ and so on.”

I deleted the last sentence in the book because a Shakespearean misquotation seemed out of place. It now reads:

“I had done nothing of note but, had I been called upon, I like to think I would have risen to the occasion because I was a link in the chain, part of a tradition”.

The epilogue reads as follows:

“Thirty-five years later I attended a Police reunion in Darwin, now a colourful city of 80,000 inhabitants.

I was given a guided tour of the multi-million headquarters which included a Police College where recruits are now given six months intensive training.

I caught up with many friends, including Primo Bonato, Denzil McManus, Harry Cox and Bill Jacobs.

I sadly met the widows of Len Cossons, Dinny Conaghan and Bill Taylor. When Joyce Taylor was asked, ‘Do you remember Jim?’ she looked at me accusingly and said, ‘of course I do. He’s the man who shot the cats’.

My mortality was brought home to me when I saw street signs dedicated to ex colleagues and people I had known, some of whom figure in this book. Hanger Bill McKinnon, Big Bill Littlejohn, Jim Mannion, Hughie Deviney and Mr Nichols.

At the Trailer Boat Club one evening I was hailed by another character in the book, Bill MacLean, the passer-by who had found the dying Scotsman in the long grass at Katherine.

That evening at the Trailer Boat Club typified the laid-back Darwin life-style, sitting at a table on a lawn under palm trees, enjoying a barbecued meal and cold beer, listening to the tide lapping up on the beach and watching the sun go down across the bay.

I caught a bus down to Katherine where once again I saw streets named after people I had known, Dinny Smyth among them.

I called in to see Mrs Petersen who had christened me the Rain Bird all those years ago, still hale and hearty at 85.

I did the tourist thing and took a bus out to the Katherine Gorge, flying along on a bitumen road and remembering how I had once plodded out there on horse back along a dusty track.

At Tennant Creek I spent a couple of hours at the Memorial Club, having a few quiet beers and remembering.

I said goodbye to the Territory from Alice Springs, no longer a small bush town but still exerting its charm on me, the proliferation of tourist related businesses and motels more than off-set by the stately ghost gums along the river bed and the grandeur of the McDonnell Ranges looking down on the town”.

Well, Graham, my hand-writing at the start was bad enough and became progressively worse. I hope you can decipher it.

Kindest regards.

JIM ALEXANDER.
Further to Surveillance – Darwin Style

Ian HOLLAND R/N 540

The Editor’s note at the end of Denver Marchant’s comments on this subject seem to invite further comment, so I thought I would submit my side of the story to, as they say, clear up ambiguities.

Firstly, both Denver and Paul’s accounts make reference to the member I was partnered with at that time and I think it only fair that he be named. He was Detective Constable Geoff Bourne; a wry, wily and cagy feller with a long string of good pinches to his credit. Now, I’m going to have to generalise because of unreliable memory for detail but Geoff and I spent several afternoon shifts hanging around the Leyland Limo with only the mozzies and sandflies to keep us on our toes. I’m pretty sure it was a Sunday night around 9pm when the suspects drove into this sad bit of clapped out rainforest to pick up their booty. They did us a big favour by parking their hotted up Ford Falcon Ute with headlights on to illuminate the stash. We crept up from behind and listened to them shouting and laughing about how they had outsmarted the Police, and we not so calmly hatched our plan of attack.

I had the phosphorous flare and had read the instructions. I had used parachute flares while in the Army and felt comfortable with this one. I had to hold it at arms length and strike it firmly underneath. I put my shotgun against a small tree and Geoff indicated he was ready. I held the flare out and hit it but not hard enough so I tried a second time and this time it went off with the brightest flash I had ever seen. It was fully alight from the time it left my hand. It was so bright that I lost my vision for 30 seconds or more, so you can imagine the scene as I stumbled forward with a loaded Remington Pump action shotgun yelling with Geoff: ‘Police: Police! Get down on your guts!’ and things equally intimidating. I remember I even had the forethought to yell out to two other hypothetical policemen allegedly hiding in the undergrowth to hold their positions and cover us. You can imagine the mortal danger those two suspects (and Geoff) were in as they tried to dig themselves into the turf.

Anyway after a while my eyesight was back to normal. I think Geoff handcuffed both of them and we informed them of the inevitable. I had a portable radio and stood on the back of the ute out of their sight whilst informing Comms and requesting that they advise Det.Sgt 1/c O’Brien. In a matter of minutes the cavalry arrived and I think it was a G.D’s van and a Traffic car and they took one each back to the CIB offices. My recollection is that Geoff and I then loaded the goodies into the suspects own vehicle and headed back.

I remember driving the Ford Falcon Ute and observing that it was a great and responsive bit of machinery. Geoff drove the Leyland Limo and I reckon we were back in the CIB rooms within an hour of the apprehensions.

If my memory serves me right it was sometimes difficult in those days to avoid getting involved in the paperwork and interviews following a pinch (especially with juveniles); and if you stood still for too long, everybody else had disappeared and you were left holding the bag. So it was that I had the hope of getting a look in with the briefs for these two. Not on your life. This was one of those cases which had aroused the zeal (See Blue Book for ‘Qualities of Detectives’) of every member who had been involved in the case and there was a queue of about a dozen members in front of us. I clearly remember that some of them must have been very tired because they were red eyed and kept bumping into walls, etc., and no; I'm not going to mention Detective Sergeants with a liking for Camel cigarettes. Anyway we didn't stand a chance!
I think we got stuck with logging the Exhibits.

Anyway that brings my recollections to a close. Thanks Paul for bringing back good memories and Denver for adding the highlights. There is no doubt that the old saying is true: 'The older we get the better we were.' I'll always remember that incident and I'll never forget that bloody flare. I still get flashbacks!

Footnote Further to Surveillance
John Ascoli Reg No 168

I have read with great interest the story by Paul Vanderhaar in issue 46 and Denver (Dogs) Marchant follow up in issue 48.
Unfortunately if this is the same matter that I am aware of they have like the good Detectives they were, glossed over the facts leading up to the successful ending to this saga. Who was it that said never let the whole truth get in the way of a good story!
It would have been some time in 1976 or there about when a quantity of oxy and acetylene equipment and a large sum of notes and coins were stolen during a break and enter at I think what was then CIG in Winnellie.
I was at the time acting Detective Inspector in Charge of the Darwin CIB, in the absence of Robyn Chalker who was on rec leave. Len Cossons was the Superintendent Crime and Terry O'Brien
the Detective Sergeant 1/c, OIC CIB Darwin.
Some days after the event, a gentleman looking for bush orchids in the Lee Point area, stumbled across the above stolen goods hidden in the bush off Lee Point Road, near the RAAF Radar Station.
The surveillance operation referred to by both members was put in place and the stolen goods including the money which was in a large canvas bank bag was left in situ!
The surveillance operation continued for several days, with two Detectives on each shift hiding in the bush in the vicinity of the stolen goods in constant radio contact with CIB. Unfortunately on one occasion due to poor radio reception in the area, one of the members on duty at the time had to leave the scene and go to higher ground to call in leaving the other member near the scene.
As luck would have it, no sooner had this occurred then an unidentified vehicle drove up to the scene an offender jumped out of the vehicle, grabbed the cash bag and drove off, all before anyone could get the rego number or description of the vehicle involved!
What a bugger, not only had we not apprehended the offenders, we had now lost a considerable sum of money.
I recall that Terry O'Brien organised a meeting at the CIB Office in the old Mitchell Street Police Station, to discuss what was now to happen, having missed the crooks as above. It was decided to continue the surveillance as the oxy gear was still in the bush and most likely they would come back to get it in the short term!
At the end of this meeting I was talking to Terry O'Brien about the matter of the lost stolen money when the Detective Super Len Cossons walked by, fortunately he was only aware of the surveillance being undertaken and not about the missing money. I thought it prudent at that time not to incur the wrath of the Boss trying to explain that not only had we missed the crooks but lost the money as well! I still think to this day that Cossons was aware of what had happened but decided to let sleeping dogs lie.
Thankfully within a couple of days one of the offenders (Jack Hoare) returned to the scene and on this occasion was successfully apprehended by Dutchy Holland and his partner at that time in the spectacular fashion previously described! The money was also successfully recovered. Needless to say I was much relieved and was very glad when Robyn Chalker came back from rec leave and I was able to hand over to him without having any major stuff up apart from the above!

During the above time, we were extremely lucky to have what I would only describe as some of the best street wise Detectives that have graced this force. They could give you plenty of headaches but they got the results and we were on top of the crims!

PS. Just in passing during the above time, I was on one occasion berated over the telephone by one of the Detectives wives for sending him on a training course, when in fact he was on rec leave and had taken his girlfriend with him!

On another occasion I was again berated over the telephone by another wife as to why her husband had to spend so much or his own money working in CIB. Apparently the good lady was going through her husband’s cheque book and noted a number of entries where the cheque was marked simply CIB!

Support the Northern Territory Police Force Monument

The NT Police Force has a proud history of serving the community across the length and breadth of the Northern Territory, often under difficult conditions associated with distance, remoteness, isolation and severe climatic conditions. Throughout its history, the police force has maintained a ‘strength of character’ when confronting and dealing with the many and varied challenges.

It is for this reason that we strive to create a monument that will reflect and express the origins of the NT Police Force from its early role as a mounted police force. The Monument will recognise the service and sacrifice of those who have faced the challenges over the years of policing a Territory unique in terms of its people, remoteness, harsh environment and aiding its progression into the 21st century.

We hope you, as retired NT Police members or as members of the Retired Police Association Inc can support this initiative. We need to raise $300,000 to construct this Monument. The Steering committee have set up a trust fund for any donations, which is tax deductible, and a Monument Foundation with exclusive benefits for your membership.

MEMBER VISIT

Garry ‘Cooch’ Kearney was in town for a few weeks visiting relatives and catching up with friends. He called in and to see us at Rpant House.

PAUL FOELSCHER - MEMORIAL SERVICE

On Sunday 31st January 2010 a short Memorial Service was held in the Pioneer Cemetery, Goyder Road, Darwin in memory of the late Inspector Paul Foelsche, the first NT Police Inspector who died on 31st January 1914.

Members of Rpant and other guests were in attendance.

Commissioner John McRoberts laid a wreath and spoke of the Inspector’s many achievements.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

David W Jones R/N 1228 has advised that he has changed address. His new address is 26 Mt Slide Road, Steels Creek Vic 3775.

KEY TAGS

A decision has been made to engrave membership numbers onto the back of key rings and lapel badges. This has come about due to the keys that were found at Casuarina Square. If they had had a number on them we would have been able to ascertain the owner. If you are interested in a key tag gives a call. We still have quite a few of the Tags with old style badge.

CYCLONE TRACY - RESEARCH

Robyn Mackenzie, wife of former NT Police Officer Roderick P Mackenzie R/N 660, is doing research on Cyclone Tracy. She is trying to ascertain the names of persons, Police wives etc who were in the first evacuations from Darwin.

It appears that these records (if any) may have been lost.

Whilst we have had some research done with NT Archives, we are unable to locate those lists of the first evacuations.

If you are able to assist in any way, shape or form, please contact the Secretary.

S/C ROY 'BLUEY' HARVEY R/N 66

On Friday 5th February 2010, ‘Bluey’ was laid to rest.

The Association flag was sent to Nambour to be placed over the coffin. Story and photos on page 9.

S/C EWEN MACKINTOSH R/N 62

On Thursday 4th February 2010 members of the Retired Police Association, serving members, colleagues and friends gathered at the new Casuarina Police Station to witness the commemoration of a framed photo of Ewen in recognition of his service at that station. Ewen was also instrumental in the planting of the gardens when the ‘Old’ station was built in the early 1970s.

Member Mick Brennan R/N 889 was a strong advocate regarding this matter.
On Friday the 5th of February 2010, Roy (Bluey) Harvey was laid to rest in Nambour (Qld.). Bluey was a legendary figure in the N.T. Police Force having served from 1957 to 1978. His exploits & achievements have been chronicled in the history of the N.T. In the latter part of his career he was forced to move to a less harsh environment due to increasing problems with skin cancer. He retired to Kandanga Qld.

Bluey was widely known & well liked in the Kandanga & Gympie regions where he & his wife, Margaret, farmed his cattle for a number of years. After the death of Margaret, his health began to decline in later years & he entered the Hibiscus Nursing Home at Nambour in 2003 where he became a popular resident. His physical & mental health continued to deteriorate until his eventual death on 1/2/10 at the age of 75 years.

A number of retired N.T. Police attended the funeral including, Bryce Fardell, Matt Sodoli, Keith Colebrook, Tony Barton, Neil Plumb, Bob O'Keefe, Warren Fairbairn, Keith Van Ranglerooy, Janelle Cox, Rhonda Walsh, Denny McIver, Slim Rogers, & Norm Breen. Also in attendance were Blue’s sister, Dorothy, & his niece, Jane, & her husband, David Sproule. All regrouped after the service for an afternoon tea and an exchange of stories of Bluey’s exploits during his life.

The following photographs are some of the former Police members who paid their respects.

Thanks to Norm Breen and Tony Barton for the ‘resume’ and photographs.
