Territory Wins At National Training Awards

Congratulations to the Northern Territory finalists and winners of the National Training Awards.

Training Minister Marion Scrymgour said the Training Awards held at the Darwin Convention Centre last night were a huge success.

“It was an inspiring evening with the very best in Australian training on show,” Ms Scrymgour said.

“The Northern Territory was represented in 6 categories and our finalists were all outstanding candidates.

Congratulations to; Kirsty Lee Bulluss who represented the Territory in the Australian Apprentice of the Year category, Tiffany Knight, finalist in the Australian Apprentice (Trainee) of the Year and Graeme Talbot, finalist Stella Axarlis Australian School-Based Apprentice of the Year:

Up against tough competition, Natasha Abbot was the Australian runner up Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Student of the Year. Natasha is an amazing student and well deserving of the award.

Special congratulations go to the Territory winners of the evening, Brian Heim who was recognised as the Australian Trades and Skills Teacher of the Year.

Brian is a dedicated teacher from CDU who travels the Territory teaching veterinary skills to trainees.

The other Territory winner of the evening was Group Training NT, Remote Servicing – ‘Working in Partnerships’.

Facing competition from businesses and training organisations around the country Group Training NT won the Australian Training Initiative Award.

Group Training NT does fantastic work in the Training sector across the Territory and deserves to be recognised for its outstanding programs.
