Entertainment

Once upon a time . . . scrambled

THE same old fairytale stories can wear thin with time. So a Darwin dancer has turned them on their head and mixed them up. Your Story — Your Magic will revamp the classics at the Darwin Entertainment Centre on Sunday. The story weaves between Aladdin, Snow White, Alice in Wonderland, Toy Story and many other movies. Director Kristy Rickert, 24, of Casuarina says the cabaret-style dramatic musical dance production is for the young at heart. “Your granny would be delighted, as would a two-year-old, as would his parents,” she says.

Rix Kix Arts director Kristy Rickert is producing Your Story - Your Magic at Darwin Entertainment Centre

“We try to take you on an adventure — it’s not a boring recital — we’re trying to change it to make it an actual story that’s intertwined. “It’s not cringy-Disney.” Even the intervals are different —

a certain beauty comes out for a nap at half-time. She says all the 60 performers had an input and that many choreographers are involved in the two-hour show. Rickert’s dance crew Rix Kix

Arts is fresh from winning Channel 9’s team of 2011 competition. Your Story — Your Magic, Darwin Entertainment Centre, 7pm this Sunday, $25-$28, children $18.

Claire Edwardes will guest-star with the Darwin Symphony Orchestra

Classic finale to masters series

By CONOR BYRNE

THEY have played with motorcycles, animals, children, wizards and aeroplanes in the past year. But the Darwin Symphony Orchestra (DSO) is returning to normality with edition three of its masters series in the Darwin Entertainment Centre on Saturday. It’s the final concert of the year — for grown-ups — and the DSO has pulled out the big guns with guest percussionist Claire Edwardes. Edwardes is a former student of the year at Sydney Conservatorium, where she teaches and has an international reputation. She plays with Ensemble Offspring. DSO spokeswoman Ginny Brown said the orchestra was rapt at the coup. “Claire collaborates with only the highest-quality musicians in Australia and abroad,” she said. Edwardes will play solo for Elena Kats-Chernin’s Golden Kitsch but the main piece of the show is Modest Mussorgsky’s Pictures at an Exhibition. Ms Brown said the final offering in the masters series was offering more classical fare. “We had the rock symphony and opera — this is taking it back to classical orchestral symphonic music,” she said. “It’s been an incredible year — we received so much support and so many people have been attending concerts. The musicians feed off that energy.” There will be an informal 30-minute, panel-style meet-and-greet session before the concert, where people can pick the brains of Edwardes, conductor Leif Sundstrup and concert master Katie Betts. “It’ll be a lovely night — a good way to top off the year,” Ms Brown said. The orchestra is offering free entry to high-school or music students who come with an adult on the night.

DSO Masters Series 3: Pictures at an Exhibition, DEC $35-$45, U18 $10.

Say Yess to party

IF there is ever a lack of cheer around Christmas, the crew at Happy Yess Market will be around to revive the festive spirit. The Yuletide Party Market at Frogs Hollow Park from 2pm on Sunday will have plenty of wacky stalls of secondhand, homemade, fun and tasty treasure. The market’s Facebook page tells it like it is. “The music in Casuarina is getting worse, real estate receptionists are already wearing zany Christmas earrings and all your mates are discussing their plans to abandon you for the festive season,” it says. “Take some time to listen to the poetry that is Mariah Carey’s 1994 hit Christmas single All I Want for Christmas is You and reflect on the true meaning of Christmas.” The nearby bar at Darwin Visual Arts Association will be open from 5pm to help spread the cheer.

Insensitivity award

THE Howard Award for the Humanitarian Treatment of Asylum Seekers will be presented to the “person who has been most insensitive toward asylum seekers” at a fundraiser in Darwin Railway Club tomorrow night. Event organiser Tim Walsh would give no hints as to the qualification criteria for the sarcastic prize — but he is still open to suggestions. “The event is open to people who take offence at this country’s treatment of asylum seekers,” he said. Entertainment will include Mark Hilton and the Two Few, The Groupie Funkers and the Darwin Dance and Drumming Group. Art and shop vouchers will be auctioned and My Sisters Kitchen will serve up international dishes. Darwin Asylum Seeker Support and Advocacy Network fundraiser, Darwin Railway Club, Thursday 7pm, $10.
