Minister for Public Employment Chris Burns today welcomed news that public servants had voted in favour of their Enterprise Bargaining Agreement (EBA).

“I am pleased that public servants have voted in favour of their EBA,” Dr Burns said.

“This is a fair and responsible agreement that will benefit public servants with better pay and conditions.

“I appreciate the concerns that were raised during the negotiation process at a time where reduced GST revenues required the government to show restraint for the long-term economic benefit of the Territory.

“I thank the Office of the Commissioner of Public Employment and all the unions involved for their work on the EBA.

“Our public servants do a great job delivering services and building the Territory and the EBA aims to continue attracting and retaining staff.”
