A Living treasure

Amanda Keller is up for the biggest award in Australian TV, the Gold Logie. As she prepares for the yearly ceremony, she talks to DANIELLE McGRANE about the success of The Living Room and why this year's Logies will be particularly special.

It hasn't been an easy year for Channel Ten's The Living Room.

Beloved host Barry DuBois revealed his cancer had returned for a second time. The diagnosis highlighted something Amanda Keller always knew – that the hosts of the popular weekly show had become family.

"The year that we've had on The Living Room, with Barry's cancer diagnosis and when he shared on air what he was going through, I don't think TV can be more real than that and we don't always see that on television," Keller said.

"To see him go through that and to see us as his friends beside him, you know we say we're a family and sometimes we cry together and we had some tears this year."

Alongside the rest of the "family" – Chris Brown and Miguel Maestre – Keller and Du Bois have been beaming into the country's living rooms every Friday night for the past seven years.

It has been the winner of the Logie for Best Lifestyle Program for the past three years and this year Keller has been nominated for the Gold Logie for the first time.

Keller has also been nominated for Most Popular Presenter and it's up for Most Popular Lifestyle Program again.

Keller: "For the four of us to be at the Logies holding hands when the show is nominated, and these other nominations, I just think it's going to be a very special night for us."

"I just think that the audience is responding to how they love the show and the friendship we all have. So maybe that's something that's contributed to the timing of this," Keller said.

DuBois is doing great, according to Keller, so the quartet will be celebrating on the Gold Coast regardless of the outcome on the night.

"For the four of us to be at the Logies holding hands when the show is nominated, and these other nominations, I just think it's going to be a very special night for us. The fact that we're all there, together when we've had a scary year, it'll be great," she said.

Keller compares the four of them to a team of super-heroes, a complete group who also genuinely like each other.

"We text each other every day and there are thousands of messages and dumb photos. We all hang out together. We obviously make Miguel do the cooking, but we all go to each other's places and our families all know each other, it's bigger than a show," she said.

There's a certain format to the show's success and Keller has a succinct handle on it.

"Within one show there'll be something that you'll learn, there'll be something that makes you laugh, there'll be something unexpected. And there'll just be a sense of people who are your friends. It's got all of that in one show," she said.

As for the Gold Logie nomination, Keller said she felt chuffed and excited.

"This is the best time in a way because once it's over you can't be on the cusp of something exciting," she said.

"Let's face it, odds are I'll be enjoying myself but walking home empty-handed, but at this point it's all exciting because it's all ahead of us."
