TERRY MILLS MEETS TAIWAN’S VICE PRESIDENT

Terry Mills, the Deputy Opposition Leader, will meet with the Taiwanese Vice President, Annette Wu, today.

“This meeting is another critical component of my mission to strengthen ties between Taiwan and the Northern Territory,” says Mr Mills.

“I see this meeting as an important opportunity to go in to bat for the Northern Territory.

“Western Australian and Queensland Governments have established representative offices in Taipei to provide support for trade with their respective states.

“The Taiwanese want to know much more about the Territory and develop trade links to our mutual benefit.

“An improved relationship will bring real opportunities for our rural, education and tourism sectors.

“There is also the possibility for long term investment in down stream gas related industries and investment opportunities for Taiwan’s state owned energy sector in the Northern Territory.

“Mr Mills will also discuss the emerging relationship between Charles Darwin University and Fu Jen University.”

Annette Wu is considered a controversial and outspoken politician. In the mid 1970’s she was imprisoned for 12 years for sedition but was paroled after 5 years due to cancer.

The Vice President has overcome thyroid cancer as well as an assassination attempt.

In 2000 she became her nation’s Vice President.

Vice President Wu has declared her candidacy for 2008 Taiwan’s Presidential Elections.
