Minister for Infrastructure Peter Styles yesterday spoke at the Information and Communications Technology Association (ICTA) meeting, held at Captovate, Darwin.

“It was a great opportunity to discuss with the industry about the Territory future and what is out there for us,” he said.

“Some of the topics that were discussed were the possibilities of capacity building and the dangers of fraud and corruption and how we could be prepared for it.”

Minister Styles said it was important to focus on the skill set that was already in the Territory and the importance of working in partnership to achieve the right outcome.

“We need to work together and look towards the industry for answers, as well as in our own backyard. Government doesn’t have all the answers, and we need to partner with industry to get the best outcomes,” he said.

The ICTA is comprised of a broad representative group of the Information Technology services and supplier companies as well as companies in the Telecommunications Industry. The association represents companies across the whole of the Northern Territory.
