Moon landing rehearsal still on as planned.

CANBERRA, Thursday. — The moon landing space rehearsal, which swung in the balance today when one of the three astronauts fell sick, will go forward as planned.

Dr. W. J. Hunter, the Apollo flight director, Mr. C. R. Kraft, said tonight that all the space, and the men, would be in place for the rehearsal to begin tomorrow night at 11 pm.

Nauseated

Schweickart reported being nauseated twice earlier today and came out of the moon-bug to cross in free flight to the hatch of the command module. The flight doctor, the emergency rescue walk between the two ships would be omitted.

Mr. Campbell told The Age: 'They planned, if successful in obtaining this, to build 2000 houses in the first instance. This would be held in progressive stages.'

'No doubt, it would bring down the number at the beginning of the day, and after coming out.

Mr. Campbell assured us that the men were 'already "in the Ter- ritory" in a substantial way.'

The corporation's plans to extend the huge Victoria River Downs project were 15 years ago.

And the station has been heavily improved since.

L. J. Hooker Corporation is also entered for a "shirtwaist" competition to be held in the Northen Territory. External Katherine residents and is believed to have put forward a past moral interest in the north.

One of our own enterprises in the Hooker pastoral organisation in Eve­ novin will be housed in the place.' Mr. Campbell said.

The organisation would followed the pattern already established in the Brinkin subdivision north of Rapid Creek, would be made available in 1969.

The L. J. Hooker plan was to be in line with the rapid development projects tackled by the organisation in the area.

The houses would be built in the area developed, and then offered for sale on long terms.

Mr. Campbell said that after consultation with the Director, Lands, he would proceed to the question of financing of homes for houses in the Territory, would be present in every "goldenslipper" to carry out photographic work.

He was due to stand early tomorrow morning. The L. J. Hooker Corporation administrator and heads of appropriate departments last year.

Co-operation

"We were received with the utmost co-operation in the area, and the people were not only enthusiastic but friendly."

Mr. Campbell said they were encouraged by the attitude of the Director, Lands, in this regard.

"We realise that when we are building in the area, and after coming out of the moon-bug to cross in free flight to the hatch of the command module."
