Chief Minister Clare Martin today outlined the latest developments in the Bali Bombing.

"The Prime Minister has announced a National Day of Mourning for Sunday, taking up a suggestion by Federal Opposition leader Simon Crean, which we will take part in," she said.

"The Territory will observe a minute’s silence at 11.30 a.m. (12 noon eastern standard time) during which flags will be flown at half mast."

At 4:00pm, the Chief Minister will join her colleague, the Consul of the Republic of Indonesia, to lay a wreath at the Esplanade Cenotaph in memory of those who died in Bali.

"The Cenotaph honours our war dead and, although these Australians and other nationalities who died were not soldiers, they were victims of a very insidious sort of war, a war of terror.

"I invite all Territorians to join us and place a flower, maybe a simple frangipani, at the Cenotaph, overlooking the sea that divides us from Indonesia."

Hospital Update:

"Of the seven victims who were remaining in Royal Darwin Hospital from the earlier evacuation, two have now been transferred interstate, four are still in intensive care and one is recovering in the wards," Ms Martin said.

"Overnight the RAAF brought a Balinese female to RDH suffering major burns, she is likely to be transferred to Sydney. Another Balinese patient sadly died soon before boarding."

Bali Crisis Line:

Ms Martin also announced that a Bali Crisis Line was available from today for Territorians.

"The number is 1800 019 116 - this is for members of the public who feel they, or someone they know may need counseling," she said.

"It’s a counseling and referral service. If your children are very distressed, or there are fears about travel for you or a friend, family member or colleague, this line may help.

"The Government will provide all the necessary resources for this phone-line."

Counter Terrorism Conference:

The Chief Minister today gave her support to an idea by Opposition Simon Crean for a conference of regional leaders to discuss ways to counter terrorism.

"I have already proposed Darwin as a possible venue due to its proximity to Asia and the past successes in running big events like the APEC Trade Ministers meeting."

Missing relatives or friends:
Federal Police advise Territorians should ring 1800 333 000 if they have concerns about missing relatives or friends.

"We are still very, very fortunate that no Territorians have yet been identified as missing, dead or seriously injured," Ms Martin said.

"Naturally, we hope this will continue and we wish all families and friends our best wishes and support during this distressing time."
